SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE – IT’S A PROGRAM PALOOZA

Kennesaw, Georgia (July 22, 2005) – On Saturday, August 20, 2005 from 9am to 2pm, the Kennesaw Parks & Recreation Department will sponsor a Program Palooza at the Kennesaw Community Center, located at 2753 Watts Drive near the entrance to Adams Park.

This free event is designed to promote the numerous and diverse programs offered through the Department and City sports associations. “With over 100 youth and adult enrichment classes and workshops, it was necessary for us to host an extraordinary open house”, said Doug Taylor, Director of Parks & Recreation.

Entertainment will include a special appearance by SkyHawk, the Atlanta Hawks’ acro-dunking mascot, a super slide, an inflatable hoop-basketball game, a disc jockey, and an Austin Powers (the “International Man of Mystery”) celebrity look-a-like. Kids will also have the opportunity to make (and take home) free crafts. Be sure to bring a camera to capture all of the excitement.

Instructors will be on-site; conducting demonstrations, answering questions and interacting with attendees. There will be plenty of food, refreshments, door prizes and giveaways throughout the day.

Individuals who register for an advertised class or workshop during the Program Palooza will receive a 10% discount off the primary registration fee. This offer is only valid for registration forms and payment received on-site, during the event.

For additional information, please call the Kennesaw Parks & Recreation Department at (770) 422-9714.
